Message from our Clergy

The flame will never be extinguished

It is no accident that one of the Scripture readings offered during Hanukkah includes a chapter dealing with light – referring to the Menorah that was the focal point of the Temple. It was a seven-branched candelabrum that remained lit 24/7/365. It was a reminder of the eternalness of God and was the light that also recalled the light of learning, of morals, and ethics that are required for people to live together. The remnant of that symbol can be found in every Jewish house of worship as well as the seal of the State of Israel.

But that is not all these readings deals with. To me the main emphasis can be found in the knowledge that Judaism is a religion of action connected to faith. No single credo defines the Jew. Rather than declaring our reliance solely on faith, Judaism requires taking action. Throughout the Bible, the Israelites raise doubts over their faith in God – that is not new. The question on the minds of the Israelites as they wander the desert in search of their destiny is whether or not to also engage in God's work. They are constantly complaining about everything from the lack of water, the dust in their mouths from the sand storms, or the endless travel seeming to go nowhere. In fact they actually bemoan their fate with doubts and fears. Still they begrudgingly move forward as though they were being pushed. Today we seem more than ever overwhelmed by self-doubt, as did our ancestors. The world, without provocation or understanding, seems to constantly berate tiny Israel. Israel is forever attempting to explain its desire to live in peace without fear of terrorism or daily bombardments from hostile neighbors. We read time and again of suicide bombers attacking for no reason other than the hatred they are taught from early on. We see children commanded to wreak havoc on anyone who is in their path. Little children who have not even learned how to talk or play or enjoy friends and growing-up are filled with such hatred that they are blinded by their frenzy.

The world looks at this as some sort of ritual that is required to gain acceptance and even admiration. Where is the cry from sane people at this wanton waste of humanity? Where is the outpouring of anger against the rankest form of child abuse? Where are the people of conscience who claim to be guardians of humanities' collective responsibility for life and liberty and happiness?

Each and every time Israel attempts to defend itself from these horrors, the world looks and sighs because they are, in most instances, successful. Occasionally mistakes are made, and sometimes with horrible results. But if you live with a siege mentality, I am sure you too would make mistakes.

Some will say that God is angry at us. Perhaps so. But if, indeed, God is angry at us it is because we don't really jump into action when confronted with what seems to be insurmountable obstacles while worrying about what people will say or do. Our insecurities seem to overwhelm us.

What should we do? Simply stated: it is to not only be a light unto the nations as the Menorah reminds us, but also to take action when needed and not expect some miracle to take place to disengage us from the ordeals of life and living. Our spiritual link to God requires us to be active in our approach to the world around us, not continually be afraid of who we are and what is needed to "MOVE-ON," and eventually continue to survive. We learned this lesson rather starkly when we were faced with certain doom at the edge of the Sea until, as the Midrash tells us, we took that first step into the water to make it separate from the dry land. We were required to take that first step in meeting our responsibilities as partners with God, not depending on God to take charge and leave us with no choices.

What we do we do because it is expected of us and our obligation is to stop complaining about things we should not be complaining about. And shaking our head as though all is lost is a sure path to inaction or even worse.

We MUST be ready to participate in ensuring the survival of Israel because our survival rests with its success. And as the Scriptural readings explain in great detail, fear will only cause destruction. We MUST never be afraid of who we are and what is needed to guarantee our right as a free people who gave the world a light to see the difference between right and wrong.

We didn't put the match in anyone's hand to light the Menorah. We offered the possibility to carry the torch and to remain ever mindful of the eternalness of our People. The Menorah stayed lit because we did not allow the flame to die.

And our faith gives us the right to proclaim the sanctity of life and the action that is necessary to guarantee that right, whether it be in Pittsburgh or right here at home.

Rabbi Irwin Wiener, D.D.

This month we celebrate Chanukah. The enduring story of the Maccabees and the miracle of the oil are the central tenets of this holiday. When we conclude our December service, we will sing Maoz Tzur. When translated literally, it means Stronghold of Rock which is another name we use for God. Our congregation has traditionally sung a blend of the Hebrew chorus from Maoz Tzur and the German version of a non-literal translation of the chorus called "Rock of Ages."

Although Jews today primarily sing this song on Chanukah after lighting the menorah, it recalls 4 ancient enemies of the Jewish people: Pharaoh, Nebuchadnezzar, Haman and Antiochus. During Chanukah we recall the time of King Antiochus and the attempt to assimilate the Jews into Hellenistic religion and culture during the Hasmonean period. When Antiochus IV Epiphanes took over the Seleucid dynasty in Syria, he persecuted the Jews and outlawed their religion. His soldiers massacred thousands of people and desecrated the second Temple in Jerusalem. This spurred the Jewish rebellion led by the priest Mattathias and his 5 sons. Judah "the hammer" Maccabee took over the rebellion after his father's death and successfully drove the Syrians out of Jerusalem. Judah then ordered his followers to rebuild the temple and light the Menorah. Although there was only enough untainted olive oil to light the Menorah for one day, it miraculously lasted for eight days, long enough to find a new supply. The words of "Rock of Ages" recalls these miracles giving credit to God:

Rock of Ages let our song praise your saving power.

You amidst our raging foes were our sheltering tower.

Furiously they assailed us, but Your arm availed us.

And Your word broke their sword when our own strength failed us.

May God, our Stronghold of Rock, continue to protect Jerusalem and all the Jewish people.

Happy Chanukah!

President's message

December is typically a happy month. Hanukkah usually falls somewhere in December and we celebrate a meaningful historical event with menorahs, dreidels, potato latkes, jelly donuts, Hanukkah gelt, and gift exchanges. We explain to children why our celebration lasts eight days. Children look forward to school vacations, and families often gather when Christian holidays result in time off from work.

As we light our Hanukkah menorahs this month, let's set aside some time to reflect quietly on the victims of the Pittsburgh shootings and of their families who are not in as light-hearted a mood as we may be. Like Jews of all ages, persecution found those eleven individuals for no reason other than they were Jews. Here, we have so far been blessed with life and safety. We have been lucky.

To promote as much safety as possible when we gather for large events such as services, the SLJC Board of Directors has taken steps to keep our congregation as secure as possible. Some steps are easy to see; others may be hidden. You may have noticed a greater presence of the Sheriff's Posse at the Chapel in November, and you probably entered the Chapel through the front door. All other doors were locked from the outside, although they are always able to be opened from the inside for emergency egress. We have no reason to believe we are in any danger, but since violence is random, we want to take action to ensure peace of mind.

So have a very happy Hanukkah and an enjoyable December. Our weather should be beautiful, new good movies usually premiere, and somewhere you might find Chinese food on December 25th. Let's have a happy month!
