journey that we seemed

Planting and Harvesting

Here it is June and now and growing replacements. Life imitates nature as the “dry heat” begins. nature imitates life. They are inseparable.

Everything we experience

What is the water that sustains us? For vegetation it is until the High Holidays in rain. For us it is the water of knowledge and the benefits September will not be and exchange of ideas. It is allowing our minds to expand about the heat but about to absorb all that is around us, such as what plants do as the continuity of life's they drink up the flow from springs and rivers.

to have missed for a

and deeds. The growth that occurs is determined by the fertilizer we use, and the water needed to assist in the development of that which has been planted.

whole year. It seems that we count the passing of time by the holidays, which includes the change of seasons. For me, the calendar incorporates living from one holiday to the next. But I also see the plants start to bloom, the trees regain their blossoms, and the earth coming alive after "sleeping" all winter.

Our lives also include planting and harvesting. When we start out, we plant the seeds of our future by our actions

Just what is the fertilizer? It consists of traditions and customs. It contains environment and habits that are learned from these exposures. As we get older, we discard some and develop others. That is part of growth. As with that which is planted, it too accepts the environment that surrounds it, discarding some foliage Perhaps this is a circuitous way of explaining my thoughts for this time of the year — the time for relaxation — the time for slowing down — the time for planning — the time for thoughts about our congregation.

We are a viable institution of learning and praying. We are also a collection of philanthropic and social individuals committed to the continuity of our heritage and faith. This happened because many dedicated people saw the need, answered the call and began a process that has changed with time. It is a living place with living emotions, living needs, living wants and desires. And we all share the pains and joys that come with time: the loss of a loved one, the joy of celebrations. Through it all we should see each other as we are, not as we think we should be.

We pitch in when needed and step back when it seems appropriate. We laugh, we cry, we interfere sometimes, we listen to things that really are insignificant. When we come together as a congregation, we understand that we are one with each other because we cannot do without each other.

All of us make sacrifices in different ways. For example, when our congregation needs stability, we look for those with experience to teach us how to learn from the past to ensure the future. When our congregation has financial needs because of demographics which either take people away or find members distancing themselves because of ailments, we should be willing to come forward and help. Synagogues also go through cycles as we do.

We are planting seeds, we are watering that which we are planting, and we will harvest a crop that will be fulfilling to ourselves, our congregation, and most of all to God. We are in the midst of some of the biggest challenges of our lifetime. We have been distant for so long, and now we look forward to once again coming together as before. Slowly but surely, we will resume where we left off before this pandemic began.

We will be stronger because of this experience. We will be more in tune with one another because we realize that loneliness begets traumas or despair. We will celebrate and exchange stories of the past year and laugh at some of the experiences and cry a bit because we could not be there for all the needs that went unfulfilled. Make no mistake — we are here, we will be together, and we will sing with one voice as we reach out to touch God in His house, as one people.

Be safe this summer. Come back to a stronger and more secure congregation. My prayer is that the upcoming High Holidays will find us more connected to each other so that our mission to bring a fruitful Jewish experience to the Southeast Valley and beyond will continue to find success. 🕯️

three u.s. senators

By Murray Siegel

The men and women who have served in the U.S. Senate are an interesting and diverse group. From 2007 through 2009, there were three senators who represented three different states, had three different party affiliations and presented three different political perspectives. Yet these three men shared a few significant characteristics.

Chuck Schumer entered the Senate in 1999, representing New York as a Democrat and an avowed liberal.

Norm Coleman was a conservative Republican from Minnesota who took his seat in 2003. In 2007, Bernie Sanders, an Independent who usually caucuses with the Democrats, became a senator from Vermont. He is a democratic socialist.

They were quite different, so you may ask, “What did they have in common?” All three are Jewish and had grandparents who immigrated from Eastern Europe. If you do not think that Coleman is a common Jewish geri gould & wende levy

We have to talk about money.

The Board of Directors, based on the recommendations of the Finance Committee, just approved our budget for fiscal year 2021-2022. Although we experienced strange and unexpected events this past year, dues will remain the same for the coming year. That will be $175 per person. Sadly, our membership has dwindled in recent years due to death or serious illness. The income side of our budget suffers accordingly.

The budget also predicts a significant deficit for the first time. In the past, per BOD and Finance Committee decisions, we have been authorized to dip into our reserve funds up to $5,000 per year. While we thought we might have to do so in previous fiscal years, we have been able to generate more income than predicted while at the same time to cut more expenses than expected. Thus far, our reserve funds have remained intact.

However, rising costs and unexpected expenses this past year (i.e. Wi-Fi licensing and monthly costs for Wi-Fi availability to enable YouTube services, higher costs for additional musical support, higher costs for audio/visual technicians, etc.) have contributed to a higher bottom line on expenses. Most of the elements of our budget (on the expense side) are fixed or contracted costs like salaries, rent, insurance, postage, and the like. Therefore, they cannot be changed. Those costs that make up the small remainder of our expenses we have pared back as far as possible to still provide the monthly, holiday, and congregational services that make us who we are. We don't anticipate much, if any, cost-cutting.

While dues remain static this year, we are appealing to those of you who can and are willing to make an additional donation to your dues statement. Any extra income we receive will directly help our bottom line. In the past, your generosity has made a big difference. Any additional contributions you make to our General Fund (which is unrestricted) make a huge difference in us being able to retain as much as possible in our reserve funds. No organization can function without an emergency reserve fund, and we are no exception.

This month, you will receive a dues invoice along with a printout of the personal information you have given us in the past. Please be sure to correct any information that is out of date or, in the case of yahrzeits, that you have to add. Later in the summer — most likely in August — you will receive your High Holiday tickets.

We wish you a happy summer and look forward to seeing many of you in person at summer Twilight Services, on July 9 and August 13. Masks and social distancing will be the norm. Our last special Twilight Service is scheduled for Friday, June 25 via Zoom. All of these services will begin at 5:30 p.m. Please note that Rosh Hashanah begins on Labor Day, Monday evening, September 6th, and unless the CDC suggests otherwise, SLJC services (like most synagogues around the country) will be live and in person at the Chapel. As of now, masks will still be required.

Please stay well, and if you haven't done so yet, get your COVID vaccinations! 🍷

Pa, Ze'ev, Joseph ... and me

By Mike Milgroom

I've never physically been to Odessa, Ukraine, although I've been there a thousand times in my mind. My grandfather, David (Pa) Hakman, my mother's father, was born and grew up there. He was the one who ignited in me my love for history. I loved him dearly. I still do. He was a "tin-knocker" – he worked with sheet metal in his little shop down the street and he would build containers of all sizes and shapes that he sold. I still have one which I keep in my Pa Hakman studio. I never put anything in it. It's there as a reminder of the times we shared at his shop.

When he was growing up in the 1890's, it was a turbulent time. Russian society was in ferment and there was much talk and many acts of rebellion and provocation against the centuries-old czarist regime that enforced a virtual serf society on the countryside. There were also pogroms and other constant anti-Semitic violence perpetrated on Jewish communities. In fact, he was once caught up in a disturbance in which he was hit in the head by a mounted soldier and, as a result, carried a steel plate in his skull for the rest of his life.

He was an ardent follower of Vladimir (Ze'ev) Jabotinsky, the fiery journalist and Zionist activist who established the Jewish Self-Defense Organization, a Jewish militant group, to help safeguard Jewish communities throughout Russia. Pa and I spoke quite often of the part he and another Russian Jew, Joseph Trumpeldor, played in the formation of what would eventually become the Israeli Defence Force, or the IDF.

Ze'ev Jabotinsky

During World War 1, Jabotinsky had the idea of establishing a Jewish Legion to fight alongside the British against the Ottomans who then controlled Palestine. In 1915, together with Trumpeldor, a one-armed decorated veteran (in fact, the most highly decorated Jew in the Russian army, awarded the cross of St. George) of the Russo-Japanese War, created the Zion Mule Corps, which consisted of several hundred Jewish men, mainly Russians, who had been exiled from Palestine by the Ottoman Empire and had settled in Egypt. This unit, considered to be the first all-Jewish military unit organized in close to two thousand years, and the ideological beginning of the Israel Defense Forces, served with distinction in the Battle of Gallipoli. Trumpeldor was again wounded there.

When the Zion Mule Corps was disbanded, Jabotinsky traveled to London, where he continued his efforts

Joseph Trumpeldor to establish Jewish units to fight in Palestine as part of the British Army. Although he did not serve with the Zion Mule Corps, Jabotinsky and 120 Zion Mule Corps members did serve in the London Regiment. In 1917, the government agreed to establish three Jewish battalions, initiating the Jewish Legion. As an honorary lieutenant in the 38th Royal Fusiliers, Jabotinsky saw action in Palestine in 1918. His battalion was one of the first to enter Transjordan (present day Jordan). In 1919, he was appointed a Member of the Order of the British Empire (MBE) for his service.

In 1917, Trumpeldor returned to Russia in order to convince the Provisional Government (Lenin had taken Russia out of World War 1) to form a Jewish regiment in the Russian army. Additionally he organised Jews to defend themselves and established the HeHalutz in Russia, a youth organization that prepared immigrants for aliyah. He then returned to Palestine himself.

In the years just after the close of World War 1, the political situation in the region remained explosive. Gangs of clanbased border peasants, combining politics and banditry, were active around the loosely defined borders between the soon-to-be British Mandate of Palestine, the French Mandate of Lebanon and of Syria.

At Tel Hai, one of four Jewish farming villages at the northern end of the Upper Galilee's Hulah Valley, in March of 1920, there was a misunderstanding between neighboring Shiites and the farmers that erupted into an armed confrontation. Joseph Trumpeldor was killed in the following firefight and was buried with eight of his fellow farmers.

That same year, Ze'ev Jabotinsky was elected to the first Assembly of Representatives in Palestine. The following year he was elected to the executive council of the Zionist Organization. He left the mainstream Zionist movement in 1923 due to differences of opinion between him and its chairman, Chaim Weizmann, establishing a new revisionist party called Alliance of RevisionistsZionists and its youth movement, BETAR (a Hebrew acronym for the "League of Joseph Trumpeldor").

Jabotinsky died of a heart attack on August 3, 1940, while he was visiting a Jewish self-defense camp in Hunter, New York that was run by BETAR. Ze'ev Jabotinsky rests on Mt. Herzl. Joseph Trumpeldor remains buried where he fell at Tel Hai and is memorialized annually in Israel on the 11th day of Adar.

Ze'ev Jabotinsky and Joseph Trumpeldor were, and still are, the founding flame of the IDF, the sword and shield of past, present and future.

I thank my grandfather for telling me their story.

Thanks to all of you for your visits, meals, phone calls, emails, cards, and get well wishes as I recovered from my surgery. This congregation is truly part of my family. Your healing thoughts and prayers are helping me recover. I am looking forward to seeing you at services soon. — Esther Spear

Thank you everyone for your calls, cards and donations that were made in memory of my sister, Gloria Wishengrad. We are fortunate to be part of such a caring and thoughtful community.
— Irwin Plafker

Our condolences to the family of Len Schulman, who passed away on April 27, just one week after his wife, Sandra, died.

We hope to see you at Twilight Services on Fridays, July 9 and/or August 13. Please remember to bring back the prayer books you borrowed.

Our condolences to Mel Moss on the death of his brother, Larry Moss.

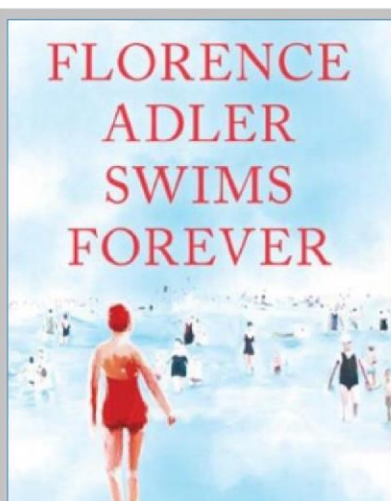

Our condolences to Ira Bendick on the death of his brother, Donald.

Our condolences to the family of Debbie Friedman, daughter-in-law of Mickey Friedman. Debbie passed away on April 27 following a very serious accident.

Conversation with the Rabbi

Introducing a new podcast hosted by Rabbi Michael Beyq CEO of the East Valley JCC, and cultural anthropologist Dr. Adrian McIntyre

From interfaith dialogues to discussions with business and nonprofit leaders, "Conversation with the Rabbi" shines a spotlight on the different ways we can learn to live, work and worship together in a contentious and conflicted world.
